

Port Commission Lists $320,594 as Its Budget for Coming Fiscal Year

ALBANY SHARE UPWARD $20,000 FROM YEAR AGO

City to Pay $281,770; Mayor Asks Detailed Statement

A total budget of $320,594.03 to be raised by taxation for the fiscal year of 1937-38, was revealed in an Albany Port District Commission resolution transmitted today to the mayors of Albany and Rensselaer.

Mayor Thatcher announced that of the total $281,770.10 represents Albany's share of the port costs and $38,823.93 is to be paid by Rensselaer. The two cities make up the port district.

Last year Albany's share of the port budget was $261,406.80, with a proportionate amount for Rensselaer.

Mayor Thatcher said he has requested Dwight B. LaDu, Port Commission chairman, to submit "a detailed statement of how the moneys are to be spent."

He said the $20,000 increase for Albany had been "logically anticipated, as the peak of the retirement of bonds for port construction is in the years 1937, 1938 and 1939." After 1939, he said, he anticipates a reduction in the amount of deficit to be raised by taxation.

The increase is due to the amount of debt retirement on the bonds," he said. "On its operations side, the port has shown increased revenues and has kept expenses down."

The detailed budget will be submitted within a few days. The fiscal year ends June 30.

LABOR OFFICE ASSURED CITY

Albany Space Sought by New Board to Take Up Disputes

Albany seat of state government is about to become also the headquarters for governmental intervention in labor disputes.

This was assured today through announcement by the State Labor Relations Board that offices of the new unit headed by the Rev. John P. Boland, Buffalo priest, would be established in Albany.

The board met yesterday with Governor Lehman at his home in New York City and in a formal statement declared:

"The board will rapidly establish offices in Albany, New York City and in Buffalo. It will select its personnel and adopt rules and regulations. It hopes therefore to be ready to assume jurisdiction over the most urgent cases on or about July 20."

Act Names Albany

The Neustein act creating the board says specifically: "The principal office of the board shall be in the city of Albany, but it may meet and exercise any or all of its powers at any other place in the state."

Father Boland and John D. Moore and Paul M. Herzog, both of New York City, other members of the board, are expected in Albany to select an office which probably will be in Labor Department quarters.

$100,000 Available

The board has an appropriation of $100,000 available when the law creating the unit became effective Thursday. Of that sum each of the city branch offices. All of them, with the exception of the executive secretary and attorneys to be engaged, must be appointed from civil service lists.

Smaller groups of employees will be named for the Buffalo and New York City branch offices. All of them, with the exception of the executive secretary and attorneys to be engaged, must be appointed from civil service lists.

New York's "Little Wagner Act," establishing the board, is primarily designed to set up machinery for supervising bargaining by employees in the selection of a union to represent them for collective bargaining. But unlike the federal act the state law permits the board to intervene in such disputes at the request of an employer as well as employees.

WPA REPORTS LACK OF SKILLED WORKERS

Private industry has absorbed so many skilled workers the WPA in Albany today faces a shortage of that type of workman.

William B. Deley, Albany district director, said he has not sufficient skilled building workers to carry on all WPA projects. The recent building boom provided jobs for practically all skilled men, he said. Because of the shortage, WPA officials believe the Bleeker Stadium field house, a WPA project, will not be finished this year, as planned.

LEISURELY BURGLARS TAKE $594 FROM SAFE

Schenectady — Slipping refreshments while they worked, amateur cracksmen pick-axed their way through the bottom of the Central Market's safe in Eastern Avenue and got away with $594.96 in cash.

The burglary and theft were discovered when the market was opened for business yesterday. Checks with a face value of $392.94 were distributed about the floor of the rear room, to which the strong box had been hauled from the office near the front of the market. The safe's condition showed an attempt first had been made to knock off the combination knob. When that failed, a pick-ax was used on the bottom of it.

STATE RELIEF IS PERMANENT

Regular Social Welfare Board Takes Over Tomorrow

Unemployment relief has come to stay.

Created in 1931 as the State Temporary Emergency Relief Administration, the bureau and its functions tomorrow will be formally taken over by the State Social Welfare Department.

As workmen today transferred the last of files and desks of Social Welfare Department from State Office Building to ninth and tenth floor of Standard Building, a chair was included for this newest permanent addition to state activities. In that chair will be seated the symbolic figure of "Unemployment Relief"—a creature which has consumed more than $700,000,000 of bond issue money and direct appropriations in the last seven years.

$53,000,000 Relief Bill

From proceeds of last year's bond issue, plus an unexpended previous balance, plus a 1937 appropriation, relief will cost $53,000,000 to the end of this calendar year. Then $54,000,000, to be derived from the utility income tax will be available to conduct relief operations until June 30, 1938—the end of the current fiscal year.

But the board that runs Social Welfare Department, along with Commissioner Adie is worried—worried about the effect of the impending WPA layoffs.

This will mean throwing employables, formerly employed, on home relief rolls, administered by Social Welfare.

Lead Increase Seen

"We may expect an increase of 30 to 40 per cent in our lead," said a Social Welfare representative today. That, while increasing the duties and responsibilities of the state organization in some degree, will affect vastly more the communities which pay 60 per cent of the home relief cost.

Transition of the TERA into Social Welfare will be without much hitch tomorrow. Social Welfare already has taken over about 200 former TERA employes, absorbing these in Albany and seven other branches of the department through the state.

About 100 employes have been added to the expanded principal offices of the department, which has been forced out of State Office Building into rented quarters for lack of space.

Skeleton TERA

It is probable that TERA's main administrative force will be retained in skeleton form, at least for some time so as to clean up old bills and other items that will be left hanging.

The Social Welfare Board will meet in Albany July 19 to survey the new machinery and see how everything is working out.

With elimination of TERA as such and the assumption of the vast task of administering home relief, Social Welfare Department now becomes an ever more powerful and extensive agency of state government.

Its functions today include old age relief administration, aid to dependent children, aid to the blind, home relief, veterans' relief, and supervision of state charges, among others.

GOOD RECORD PREVENTS FINE

Red-Light Runner Never Arrested Before; Gets Suspended Sentence

Twenty-five years of driving without even being questioned by a traffic officer saved Joseph Libby Sr., Ballston Street, from a fine for running a red light.

Facing the court, Libby said: "If the officer says I ran the red light, I did. I'm sorry. I've prided myself on not breaking traffic laws and I've wanted to keep my record clear. I didn't see the light, but my son, who was riding with me, said it was red."

"You deserve special consideration," Recorder Rubenstein said. "Sentence is suspended."

"Topping all fines in Traffic Court was a $25 fine paid by Albert Rickerfman, 691 Clinton Avenue, for speeding 40 miles an hour on Second Avenue.

Other fines were:

Edward Ott, Schenectady Road, $2, illegal parking; Lawrence J. Plump, 1251 Western Avenue, $2, speeding; Robert Prescott Jr., Pittsfield, $2, illegal parking; John H. Goodwin, Coxsack, $3, red light; Charles Mirabile, 219 Second Street, $2, illegal parking; Garry Jordan, 207 1/2 North Pawling Street, $3, red light; Daniel Lipschultz, 11th and Third Street, $5, night parking; Philip Chiores, 285 Second Street, $5, night parking; Robert Morten, Utica, $3, red light; James Merchant, 129 Fourth Avenue, $5, night parking; Eric Almqvist, New York City, $3, red light; James Johnson, 21 Lawn Street, $5, night parking; William Sammons, 4 St. John's Terrace, $5, night parking.

Ludlum, assistant treasurer; L. C. Hyatt, chief engineer, and F. M. Root, office manager and purchasing agent.

Directors chosen were Mr. Hawley, Thomas I. Van Antwerp, Mr. Hammond, Claude C. Nuckolls, Mr. McElroy, Francis P. Trapp, Arthur L. Andrews and William G. Gillespie. Election inspectors were Mr. Ludlum, Edward B. Hawley and Charles L. Spore.

FOOD STORE STAFFS SEEK AFL CHARTER

A charter in the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers Association, American Federation of Labor affiliate, is the aim of Albany's newly organized association of food store employees.

Nearly 100 members last night heard George W. Shepherd of Chicago, member of the AMCB&A and George Cox, Albany district organizer for the AFL.

One member asked if the group would be permitted to hear a CIO representative, George Porter, president of the association, said that during an intensive membership campaign last week sentiment was found largely against the CIO, but that if the members voted for a CIO talk it would be arranged.

Decision of the Appellate Division on the appeals from conviction and prison sentence in behalf of former County Clerk George T. Bradt and his sister-in-law, Alberta Bradt, is expected late this week.

UPSTATE SLIDE 7 ARE INJURED ON HIGHWAYS

Rain and Weight of Bank Forced Up Floor of Boquet River

The landslide which dammed the Boquet River near Willabro, Essex County, and forced the river to seek a new channel 10 days ago, was technically a "balance slide," Dr. David H. Newland, state geologist, said today.

Dr. Newland, who viewed the effects of the slide a few days ago, said he had made some interesting studies.

"This particular landslide was of a curious form," he said. "The heavy rains which had preceded it were a factor in it. Approximately 300 feet back from the river channel was a bank 60 or 70 feet high.

Weight Transferred

"I determined that the weight of this bank was transferred to a substratum of clay, which in turn pushed ahead and forced the blue Champlain silt in the river bed to rise.

"The result was a solid bank of blue silt 26 feet high and 300 feet long, blocking the channel in which the river had flowed for many years. The river found a new channel to the west of the old one."

Dr. Newland said that in landslides of this type the heavy mass naturally pushes up the clay from the river bed, where the load is lightest.

The Boquet River at the scene of the slide is about 70 feet wide. Dr. Newland said. The new channel today is about the same width. He said the mass which blocked the old channel is still intact and expressed the opinion the river would continue to follow its new channel.

The landslide, where the river winds through the farmlands of Richard McAuliffe on the Willabro-Reber Road, was one of the biggest in the state's known history.

Dr. Newland said he had discovered the marks of prehistoric landslides adjacent to the river. He said the slide had left its mark indelibly in jagged cracks in the ground between the river bed and the earth bank.

Another Ringling In Show Business

The name Ringling, one to conjure with in the realm of the big top, was linked with the circus which played at Menands last night.

This Ringling is Paul, 17, grandson of Al Ringling, one of the founders of the Ringling Circus. The road he mapped out for this handsome youth and some day the big show undoubtedly will be his own, but he's going to learn the business from the bottom up.

Under the tutelage of Sam Gumpert, old maestro of circuses, young Ringling has signed on with Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Combined Shows as time-keeper. Just graduated from New York Military Academy at Cornwall-on-Hudson, the next post scheduled for him is ticket seller.

In time, the plans call for advancement to assistant superintendent of the big show.

2,000 CCC Places Open to State Boys

About 2,000 places in the CCC for New York State boys whose families are not on home relief will be open during the next enrollment period, July 1-31, through a provision in the new law just signed by the President, which stipulates only that candidates be "unemployed and in need of employment."

Preference will still be given to boys from relief families. Frederick I. Daniels, assistant state commissioner of welfare, announced today in making public the change in eligibility. The new law also reduces the upper age limit for junior selectees by five years so that only boys between the ages of 17 and 23 may hereafter go to the camps.

The Council of Social Agencies in Albany is being asked to co-operate in apportioning the quota of non-relief enrollees among the various private agencies, choosing the boys most in need of employment and certifying them to the selecting unit of the local welfare department, which will send the boys on to camp.

There are approximately 9,000 New York State boys in camp at this time. In the coming enrollment a quota of 4,300 has been established for the State.

BAKERY PICKETED

Picketing of the Star Bakery in South Pearl Street was begun today by members of local 19 of the Bakers' Union after one of three employees at the bakery walked out on strike this morning.
